Waterways and Wilderness

The Southern Trove is the southernmost region of Tasmania and is surrounded by pristine waterways and World Heritage wilderness. The major settlements hug the coastline and have become a major focus of industries such as fishing, aquaculture and tourism.

Far South

Where the mountains and forest meet the Great Southern Ocean...

Flanked to the west by the rugged world of the South West National Park, the Far South also has many sheltered, quiet bays and beaches along its eastern flank, around which most settlement occurs. This blend of bush
